

Student Number 2

First Draft

Leadership, courage, uniqueness, initiative, visionary, and an influence are all characteristics Rosa Parks are perceived through out her life. She made good decisions when she was fighting for her rights by not use violence. She showed us that we can do anything we set our minds to and nothing is impossible. Rosa said "The only tired I was, was tired of giving in".

When Rosa Parks showed us courage she said she was tired of being treated like she was less then everyone else because of her race. When everyone was tired of it she decided she was going to do something about it. In December 1, 1955 she refused to give up her seat to a white person. After she was bailed out she decided that one person want going to change anything so she started to spend time with you youth groups. She told them that they should not be afraid to speak what they thought. When she showed she had initiative she told us we just cant wait for someone else to do what needs to be done, if we don't like it do something about it. She was arrested so many times but every time they arrested her it only made her stronger. She knew she never wanted this for the next generation of kids. Rosa parks once said "The more we gave in and complied the worse they treat us".

When she showed us leadership she took control when everyone else had given up. She told us that nothing was impossible and we could do anything if we set our minds to it. When people started to trash her house and sent her death threats it only made her want to fight harder. She made good decisions when she was fighting for her rights she didn't use violence she held her ground but didn't fight. She began the civil rights movement.

She showed us she was unique when she beat the odds, when people said she could never do that and that it was not going to change. She told them that you could do anything if you set your mind to. She was unique because she thought differently about was what happening. She didn't like it so she did something about it. She started the civil rights movement. She never backed down or shied away from what she had to do. In 1953 Rosa Parks started a Boycott it lasted 381 days where African Americans didn't ride the bus they were tired of having to get in the back and move for the whites. In 1954 the U.S. Supreme court desegregated all schools. She was a good influence on kids because she always told us that what ever we want we can achieve if we set our minds to it.

Rosa Parks showed us to be human means treating each other with respect. Rosa said that "We should not set our sites just because of where we come form or what race we are".

Revised for Word Choice

Leadership, courage, uniqueness, initiative, visionary, and an influence are all characteristics Rosa Parks are perceived through out her life. She had good acumen when she was fighting for her rights by not using cruelty. She showed us that we can do anything we set our minds to, and nothing is beyond our reach, just things we don't go for. Rosa said "The only tired I was, was tired of giving in".

When Rosa Parks showed us bravery she said she was tired of being treated like she was beneath than everyone else because of her race. When everyone was tired of it she decided she was going to do something about it. In December 1, 1955 she refused to give up her seat to a white person. After she was bailed out she decided that one person was not going to change anything so she started to spend time with you youth groups. She told them that they should not be afraid to speak what they thought. When she showed she had initiative she told us we just can't wait for someone else to do what needs to be done, if we don't like it, do something about it. She was arrested so many times but every time they arrested her it only made her stronger. She knew she never wanted this for the next generation of kids. Rosa parks once said "The more we gave in and complied the worse they treat us".

When she showed us leadership she took that control when everyone else had given up. She told us that nothing was impossible. When people started to trash her house and sent her death threats it only made her want to fight harder. She made good decisions when she was fighting for her rights she didn't use violence she held her ground but didn't fight. She began the civil rights' movement. She showed us she was an individual when ,she beat the odds, when people said she could never do that and that it was not going to change. She told them that you could do anything if you set your mind to. She was unique because she thought differently about was what happening. She didn't like it so she did something about it. She started the civil rights' movement She never back downed, even though that would have been the easy way or shy away from what she had to do. In 1953 Rosa Parks started a Boycott it lasted 381 days were African Americans didn't ride the bus they were tired of having to get in the back and move for the whites. In 1954 the U.S. Supreme court desegregated all schools. She was a good influence on kids because she always told us that whatever we want we can achieve if we set our minds to it.

Rosa Parks showed us to be human means treating each other with adoration. Rosa said that "We should not set our sites just because of where we come form or what race we are".